

EXTINCT MAMMAL

Megatherium darwini

This giant ground sloth was one of the largest mammals to ever live in South America. It was a herbivore and lived in the same environment as the giant ground sloth. It was a very powerful animal and could climb trees. It was a very important part of the ecosystem and its extinction was a major loss to the world.

